supplied to Mr. Diaks L. Parish, of the gentichinen's furnishing firm of Sellers & Parrish. 16 Olive, who seemed greatly surprised, but by no means grief-stricken at the announcement. He was greatly disinclined to speak apon the subject, but finally said: "I don't mind saying that this woman, Miss Reader, is not a cousin of my brother, or related to any member of our family. My brother's relations with her have caused us sorrow, and I have endeavored to show him that he was making a mistake in living with the woman. I undertook to show him some time ago that she was not what he believed her to be, and did so so effectually that he was almost broken down by the discovery. It was a complete surprise to him and one which I supposed would bring him to his senses. He continued his relations with her, however, and I dismissed the entire matter from my mind. I decided to have nothing more to do with it, and even now I desire to say not another word regarding it."

A search was made for Mr. George H. Reader, claimed by the young lady to be her father. He is an oldish gentleman who engaged in the feed business in a small way, and having an office which he very seldom visits at all North Third street. He was formerly connected with E. O, Stanard's mills, but of late he has hardly ever been seen on 'Change, and only a few of the feed-men there have any memory of him.

It is one to the effect that the usual misunder-standings which arise where unhallowed associations exist had embittered the life of the "cousins." Mr. Parrish, a young man of fine appearance, tiring of the happiness of his parlors on Morrison avenue, began to go out into society. Here Miss Reader could not follow him, a matter at first borne with regretiulness, but finally with sorrowful upbraidings. Last night Mr. Parrish went to a social gathering. His absence, the more painful probably because hiss Reader had begged him to give up pleasure for her sake, became unendurable, and hospital probablility to-morrow morning.

A REGULAR MESS.

THE LIBERAL AND TORY SCHEMES FOR HOME BULE IN IRELAND.

English Opinion a Complete Hodge-Podge-Mr. Forster's Serious Illness—The Situation in the East—Russia and Austria Arming to the Teeth—De Freycinet Summoned to a New French Cabinet—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, December 31.—The first thing this year was a telegram from Gordon saying that Khartoum was all right; the last thing of the year is the news of a battle in the Soudan. It is evidently a severe defeat of the Araba, as they were in great numbers, but lost three guns, twenty banners and five Emirs killed.

GLADSTONE'S CONGRATULATIONS.

Gladstone received over 1,000 letters and telegrams of congratulations on his birthday. The rejoicings on Tuesday terminated by the servant's ball at Hawarden Castle, Mrs. Gladstone leading off with the butler and W. H. Gladstone following with the housekeeper The grand old man, says a correspondent greatly enjoyed the fun.
FORSTER'S ILLNESS.

Forster is reported better, but his death is expected by every one. I have just seen twenty gine blocks of his portrait being hastily dispatched to the provincial papers.

The Voters' Protection Committee of the National Liberal Club has decided to commend several prosecutions against Conservatives for intimidation during the election. THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The close of the year prompts nobody here to cheerful forecasts at home or abroad alike. There is uncertainty overhung with shadows of threatening disaster. English opinion of home rule is a complete hodge-podge, which may play into the Tories' hands, and possibly even compel Gladstone to draw in his horns. The chief Liberal press agency, which sends London correspondence and editoral matter to the provincial Liberal press, has received requests from many quarters to modify its direct advocacy of Gladstone's home-rule scheme. Abroad the general opinion undoubtedly takes the same view.

THE EASTERN SITUATION. I have frequently expressed the opinion that hostilities are merely tided over for the winter. Russia and Austria are arming to the teeth at every possible point. Krupp has supplied more guns in the last month than almost any one year previously. Turkey is still massing troops on the Macedonian frontier and experimenting with her im-mense force under arms, all winter The attitude of Greece, who shows no signs of any intention to disband, creates the greates uneasiness. It is stated here that very large the United States. Altogether the New Year's bells to-night will waken anxious thoughts in the leaders of England.

Several County School Commissioners came in last night to attend the Commissioners' meeting, which opens in the Senate chamber to-night. A large number are expected this afternoon and to,night.

The following is a statement of the amount of fees taxed on corporations incorporated during the year and the tax on St. Louis Notaries Public, received by the Secretary of State during the year ending December 31, 1885, and paid by him into the State Treasury. For fees of office, $5,877.30; for tax on corporations, $34,280; for tax on $5. Louis Notary commissions, $2,120. Total, $42,802.80.

A Choir Change. Tuesday evening a pleasant surprise was sendered Prof. North, leader of the choir of St. George's Episcopal Church, the occasion mark ing the close of Prof. North's work in that capacity and the withdrawal from the choir of a number of the singers of the year just closing. Mr. Benedict, the organist, will succeed Prof. North as director of the choir, and will probably not increase the number which will be considerably reduced by the withdrawal of Mrs. A. Deane Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. David Hays, Prof. North, Messrs. Arthor Alexander and Walter Gilliam. The Government has declined the proposition and both accused will have to stand their trial.

Secretary Manning holds that the sinking fund for the current fiscal year requires $48, 500,000. He said that it would not do to call that amount at once, and hence he had made, to begin with, a call of $10,000,000 only. This would indicate that between February I and June 50 there will be four bond calls of $10,000,.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 31 .- The Sec retary of the Treasury has issued a circular letter to Collectors of Customs extending the provisions of Article 1,186 of the regula-tions of 1884, in which collectors are given dis-cretionary power to remit the assessments of duties in cases where the dutiable value of an importation is less than $1, so as to cover articles contained in passengers' bag-gage, where the amount of duties does not exceed $2.

ceipts, therefore, next year are almost sure to be less than they are this year. From the dues of members, which have been $50 a year, a considerable income has been derived, with the membership now numbering 1,393. It was apparent, however, that the income was far from sufficient for the board's needs, and in consequence the directors at the last meeting increased the dues to $75. A great many knowing the condition of the board's financial affairs expected them to be raised to $100. Dissatisfaction was expressed, and the price of memberships, which a few months ago was $4,500, dropped to $1,500, but sales of yesterday realized $2,125. It is claimed that no means have been taken, so far, toward providing a sinking fund, which will have to be $25,000 annually, to meet the payment of the bonds when they fail due.

THE TERRITORY NOT LIKELY TO BE AD MITTED TO THE UNION.

Votes to the Republican Column—Scheme to Divide Texas—Opening the Indian Territory

WASHINGTON, December 28.—There is a good deal of talk about Dakota at Washington, and there will probably continue to be during the winter. Dakota has been knocking at the doors of Congress for three winters, demanding admission to the Union. It is Republican in sentiment, and only Republicans will favor ern Dakota might be said to have enough of a population in proportion to its area to entitle it to admission. The Democrats will naturally resist the admission of Dakota, simply because it will give the Republicans at once a new State and will add three electoral votes in the next Presidental contest to the Republican column. All of the Northwestern Territors are populated by Swedes and Norwegians, and representatives from New England. The first two mentioned nearly always/become Republicans after they become naturalized. The Republicans depend mainly upon this class of emigrants for maintaining their hold in the Northwest. There are many prominent Republicans who for maintaining their hold in the Northwest. There are many prominent Republicans who do not believe that the party [will ever come back to power except by the acces, sion of new States to the Northwest. The majority of the States admitted to the Union since the time of the Missouri Compromise have had to come in through some compromise similar in character. Generally, where a Northern State has been admitted a new one has been added to the Southern States. Up to the beginning of the war the balance was evenly divided between the two sections. Since then Nebraska and Minnesota have given the preponderance to the North, and it is now proposed to add still further to this preponderance by first admitting Dakota and ultimately Montana. It has been proposed upon the part of certain Southern men that Texas should be divided so that Western Texas might stand as a separate State, to be added to the Southern list. It is claimed by these Southern men that Texas is too large, and that it contains enough material to make four States. They argue that it does no harm to the general government, and whether there are thirty-eight States or twice that number paying allegiance to the central government it can make no difference. They argue that the narrower the territory of the States themselves, the closer will be the supervision of the local governments, and that there will be consequently less liability to misgovernment.

The Dakota admission scheme is championed by some very active citizens from that Territory who expect to be Senators and members from the new State. They have no means of enforcing their claims, however. They have no ardent advocates in Congress. While the Republicans there favor the admission, they know that it is impracticable to expect the Democratic House to pass the bill of admission and so, probably, do not take very much interest in it. I do not believe the Committee on Territories will even report the measure in the House. In the Senate it is not improbable that a bill of admission may be passed.

A REMARKABLE OCCURRENCE.

After Ten Years' Burial. By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch.

Greenville, S. C., December 31.—Details were received last night of a remarkable oc-ourrence in Yorkville, this State. In 1875 James A. Watson, whose family then resided at Yorkville, lost a child aged 4 years by death. At that time Watson was living in Baltimore as a teacher in the Bryant Commercial College, as a teacher in the Bryant Commercial College, and he could not conveniently leave his business to attend the funeral. In his absence only a temporary burial was given the body, waiting his return home to secure a permanent burial lot in the cemetery. Tuesday he went into the cemetery to remove his child. The burial case, a metallic casket was raised from the grave, and a natural desire to look upon the face of the child which had died and was buried in the father's absence prompted Mr. Watson to ask for the removal of the lid covering the glass panel over the face. Just as the undertaker was about to remove the cover a loud explosion occurred a hattering the glass, which was a quarter of an inch thick, into numberiess fragments, several of which struck Mr. Watson in the face, cutting him severely. One piece struck the bridge of his nose, cutting nearly through it. The casket had been out of the ground several minutes when the explosion occurred. The explosion was equal to that of a dynamite cartridge, and was noticed by persons on the street more than a quarter of a mile distant. The face of the child was in an excellent state preservation, as were also its burial clothes, and a wreath of flowers on the breast seemed to be nearly as fresh as when buried ten years ago.

The Year's Mortality.

Dr. Carson, the Clerk of the Board of Healt! Dr. Carson, the Clerk of the Board of Health, has been engaged all day in making up his mortality report for the year ended to-day. The report will show that there was a very light mortality this year, there being about 400 deaths less than occurred in 1834. This will bring down the percentage of deaths in St. Louis considerably and will show it to be one of the healthiest cities in the country. The mortality among old people uring the year has been very great. The total number of deaths is between 7,400 and 7,500. The birth record shows that there have been about 250 more births this year than last.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Union.

The announcement of the death of Prince Ferdinand of Saxe-Coburg, father of the King of Portugal, at Lisbon, Tuesday, has a local interest. He was the second husband of Queen Marie II. and regent during the ministry of his son Pedro. His second wife was Elsie Hensler of this city, who is well remembered by the older residents. Her father, a shoemaker, had a little shop on Main street, not far from the site now occupied by the Opera House, and many of the older business men employed him to make their boots and shoes. There was in the city at that time a music teacher named Signor Guidi, who suddenly became aware that Elsie, a little daughter of the shoemaker, had a remarkably sweet voice. He determined to give the child an opportunity to cultivate it, and at once set himself to work to interest some of the prominent people of the city in her behalf. They heard her sing, and with her clear, rich voice, her bright, black eyes and handsome face, she won the hearts of everybody. Not a few of the people who were living here thirty years ago or more will remember her singing in the old Hampden Hall Theater. It is said that when she first sang in public her dress was of white cotton. Elsie rapidly grew in public favor, and when she moved to Boston with her father's family she was put in a way to pursue the study of music and afterward went abroad and became a famous opera singer and developed into a very brilliant woman, receiving many tokens of royal favor. There are many anecdotes related of her, though how much truth can be attached to them is uncertain. It is said that on one occasion during the second empire she was at a court reception and wore at her throat a magnificent pin. Napoleon during the evening presented her with another of great value and beauty. Removing the pin she had been wearing, she tossed it out of an open window and replaced it by Napoleon's gift.

Every one will remember the appointment of a cripple named Willie Howard to be a page in the last House. This poor little chap, although quite well along in years, is not much more than three feet high, and is badly crippled. He somehow or other elicited the sympathy of "Objector" Holman, who, in this instance did not oppose the fatal objection when the boy applied for a place. Mr. Holman placed him in front of the Appropriations Committee room door, and kept him there in spite of the protests of those who did not like to see the little fellow suffering. He is not here this session, and it is said the little fellow will never be able to again take his place among the employes of the House.

During his sickness this summer some scoundrel stole his goats, and the boy is destitute and dying. It is said that Mr. Holman, who has soft corners in his heart in spite of outward appearances, is quietly working among the members who know the lad to secure for him a small purse which shall make his last hours at least comfortable.

FURNITURE, when desire moving with care

WITH a balance in the Treasury of $62,000,000 available for the reduction of the debt, Mr. Manning has consented to he should take another hint from the have been strange if we had announced s ing it. The New York Tribune, however, Tribune is a more reliable authority in a case of this sort than in the matter of election returns. Senator Evarts has promised a speech on the silver question, and when he delivers it there will be no longer any doubt about his position.

MR. WILLIAM E. CHANDLER would have it understood that he intends to sharply scrutinize the new administration of our naval affairs and freely criticise and censure it whenever occasion demands. This simply means that Mr. CHANDLER intends to show that the new policy of the Department of the Navy is utterly bad and victous, even if he knows it to be admirable in every way and a signal improve ment on his own naval policy. If Mr. CHANDLER knew what is the proper and becoming thing for him to do, he would have nothing to say on this subject and do nothing whatever to direct increased public attention to the contrast between Secretary Whitney's management of naval ted in the carrying business, of the tored to meet the wishes of the Convenon, and of the value of the transportation that would result from such expenditure. Everyone admits that water transportation is of great value to commerce lars of the people's money in the interest represent this demand owe it to themselves to justify their action.

A STARTLING DOCTRINE.

The Philadelphia Record admits that "no Secretary of the Treasury has attempted to obey the silver-dollar act since its adoption, except in the matter of coinage." It says that Manning and his predecessors to avoid paying out silver as the law this violation of law as "a wise course" financial calamity."

This is a strange doctrine to be inculdisobey; running the Government, regu- offense and have escaped the penalty, lating its affairs and ruling the country and violation of law! Can we boast "a have been only the deeper. government of the people, by the people and for the people" when executive officers THE Missouri River Convention, held at are no longer the servants of the people or learned at West Point and in the army. When two-thirds of both houses of Congress passed the silver-dollar law over President HAYES' veto they assumed the entire responsibility for the ensuing calamities which President HAYES and Secretary SHERMAN predicted, but which have not come upon us yet; and neither HAYES nor other classes of government creditors were ence to themselves.

If the law had been obeyed to the letter JOHN W. BAME, Assistant Chief of the in all its parts, as it was with respect to of Congress, is the shortest cut to the overthrow of our system of government.

THE END OF A YEAR. The year 1885 has marked a relatively placid flowing of the stream of history. Within its short compass the procession of human affairs has introduced no memor able events, no radical changes, and no violent convulsions. The recent past was dramatic with mighty changes and great conflicts; but now there is a pause which enables us to study the deep and quiet repast and to mark the strong and resistless tendencies which, in some measure forecast the historical aspect of the future. But the calm which we enjoy is not without ominous signs and portents. In a reign of almost universal peace, there is a universal readiness for war which finds no parallel in modern times. The impression seems to deepen that at some time, and in some way, the strongest Powers. But in any event, the

"What have you got to conceal?"

"Well dat's all right, but you can't get any pointers from me and you don't need to try."

"Say, Mollie!" said a throat lozenge voice in a rear cell, which was afterwards discovered to be the property of one of the three young hoodiums, named "Pete," "Say, Mollie! said a first ing you know." ("Onl say!" said Mollie, addressing the Pidell woman, "he's a reporter. Ain't he snide? I bet you a quarter he's got every ting we said chalked down and—"

"He'll have us posted up in all de papers to morrer," interrupted the tough before designated as Pete.

"Well, I'll tell you," continued Mollie, addressing the Post-Disparch man, "I'll tell you, I'm sorry I didn't go back to work where I was workin' before, instead o' goin' up dere last night, and I wouldn't be here dis mornin'. Would I, Mary?"

"No you wouldn't, Mollie," said the alleged Mrs. Pidell; "I'll tell you how it is sir, added she to the reporter; "I'm a married woman, but my husband doesn't live with ma any more. I have lived up on Cass avenue for two months and I never had any trouble at all until last night. Now I suppose I'm disgraced forever. house in the world; never, sir. Last night the boys brought some beer around and we were drinking it and playing cards, having a sociable time, but there wasn't anything wrong going on. I assure you. If I had known that the beer was stolen I wouldn't have let them bring it there at all, but how could I tell anything about it?"

"What did Mollie want there?"

"What did Mollie want there?"

"What did Mollie want nere?"
"What'd I want?" put in that pert young woman. "I didn't want nothin'."
"A guest, eh?"
"No, I wasn't a guest. I was invited there as a visitor. Say, what do you want to know all dis here for? It ain't none o' your business. You go on now, and don't bodder me

The reporter took this last remark as a cue for his departure and accordingly "went on." The woman Pidell is probably a year or two older than the age she gave the Sergeant and has not, apparently, been always associated with the projectariat element in which she was last night. She mays her husband left her because he preferred to "run with colored peodle." HELD TO ANSWER.

While carrying the crowd to the Station House, the patrol attached to the Third District, which was used on this occasion, was loaded down too heavily and broke a spring. The damage, however, will be repaired to day.

Captain Barry joined the Department November 1, 1875, and was born and raised in 8t. Louis. He made a splendid record at the Southern Hotel fire with M. J. Hester, and is beyond doubt a first-class fireman. He is just in the prime of life, at the age of 35 years. There is a strange coincidence connected with the No. 10 Engine House. Hester was driver of that engine when he was promoted to his present position, and John Lindsay was running out of that house as Assistant Chief, when he was made Chief, and now comes the third promotion out of dve made in the department during the past ten years. Mr. Bame, the retiring Assistant Chief, has been appointed to assist Secretary George W. Tanillie, Sr., George W., Tanillie, Sr.

OMAHA, NEB., December 31.—United States District Attorney Lambertson has received instructions from the Attorney-General upon the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior to commence civil and oriminal proceedlegis against some eight or ten persons for il-legis fencing of public lands. The plats in his hands show about 89,000 acres. Other cases are expected soon. The largest enclosure re-ferred to in his instructions embraces more than 98,000 acres. In some of the cases civil proceedings were commenced some time ago.

Iglesias was his Secretary of State and Gen. Cacres was appointed by him to the position of Commander-in-Chief of the armies of the Central States of Peru. At the close of the war Pierola resigned and went to Paris, where, with the exception of about three months spent in traveling through this country, he resided until last January, when he returned to Peru. At the close of the was absent, Generals Iglesias and Caceres continued to wage war against each other, each claiming to be President. When the returned, Pierola, to put an end to this strife, proposed that both should resign, and that a general election be called to select a new President. This proposition greatly any as banished from Peru in September last. A month ago the city of Lima was besieged by Caceres, which ended in the diplomatic corps being called in as peacemakers, and the result was that both Iglesias and Caceres resigned and retired to private life. A temporary Government was appointed and a general election was called to be held in March for the election of a new President. This left Pierola free to return to Peru, and he is now on his way home and will be a candidate for Presidents at the coming election. Gen. Caceres will probably be his only opponent, as Gen. Iglesias has left Peru with his family and gone to the Argentine Republic. Pierola's friends in this city claim that his election is certain. The Peruvian ex-President is a small, wiry, dark-complexioned man, with bushy black hair and a dark mustache. He speaks but little English, but is very animated when conversing in his native tongue or in French. He dimed last night with Michael Grace, of the firm of William R. a high-comedy walk, and a pair of flowing side-whiskers of unusual luxuriance as to density and outline, went to the opening night of the opera season. His appearance was simultaneous with that of Lohengrin, and he detracted considerably from the impressiveness of the tenor by the mellow radiance of his smile and the jaunty manner with which he glanced around at the boxes as he moved down the middle aisle. The usher indicated a seat which was near the orchestra, and the affable gentleman bowed, raised his eyebrows, contracted the sweeping curve of his side whiskers, placed the forefinger of one white-gloved hand upon the solitary stud in his shirt front, waved the hand gently and bowed again, as one would who had decided to spring "merci" upon a man unacoustomed to the beauties of the French tongue. Then the large and round gentleman immediately said "Bravawi?" in a loud and distinct tone.

Upon this, the millionaire looked sharpally over the edge of a neighboring box. He stared the placid late-comer in the eye fona moment, but before he could withdrawd his head he was greeted with a bland, friendly and half-familiar smile, accompanied by a wave of a white-gloved hand. The greeting was thrown so cordially at the millionaire that he nodded half reciprocally, and withdraw in a thoroughly mystified vein. With a face still wreathen in smiles, the gentleman—whom the work of the tips of fingers, and brought it to bear on the stage. Upon this the attention of a thousand or more opera-goers was re-something alluring and inexplicably entertaining about the surface indication of his slightest smile. It reminded one of the effect of a pebble thrown into an unruffled pool. When the gentleman began to smile, the tip of his pose moved all the ruffled pool. When the gentleman began to smile, the tip of his nose moved slightly upward, as though scenting a bit of a joke. Then his mustache curled slowly at the ends, circular lines appeared in his cheeks, semi-circles chased each other over his forehead as he raised his eyebrows, and his whiskers moved aloft on either side in harmonious and sweeping curves. The smile died away first where it had begun, but it seemed to the people who were gazing at the man that long after his mouth and face had ceased to be hilarious, the last indications of a departing smile were visible on the upturned and vibrating points of his graceful whiskers. The curtain dropped upon the first act, and the people in the boxes continued to talk as though nothing had occurred. Then the large man pulled himself together in a natty and dainty manner drew his waistocat down briskly, settled his collar in its place, rose in his seat, and, turning, faced the audience and glanced over it pleasantly and without disdain. Then he took up his doubled-barreled field-glass and brought it to bear through the whole length of the auditorium direct at Mr. Vanderbilt, who sat in his box on the hen he took up his doubled-barreled field-lass and brought it to bear through the rhole length of the auditorium direct at fr. Vanderbilt, who sat in his box on the eft of the entrance. Mr. Vanderbilt ooked into the yawning barrels of the leld-glass and blinked rspidly. "His leld-glass and blinked rspidly. "His Whiskers' dropped the glass, produced a mile, which, for breath, intensity, ro-andity, and carrying power, topped all other efforts that he had made, and bowed with gracious consescension to the two-hundred millionaire. Mr. Van-derbilt looked rattled, then he started half forward succumbed to the effect of the beaming smile, and bowed in return, it was perfectly evident that he hadn't tit was perfectly evident that he hadn't tit was remote idea in the world who the affable gentleman wis, for long after the before him, gazing perplexedly at the gen-before him, gazing perplexedly at the gen-

Jacob Gill, the young negro who endeavored to assault two little girls, about 8 years of age, daughters of Mr. Barney Harman and Wm. Shafferneyey, two farmers of St. Ferdinand Township, in St. Louis County, was given an examination at Clayton yesterday and bound over for the Grand Jury. Gill met the little girls, and also a son of Mr. Harmon, on their way home from school, a few evenings ago, and placing a pistol at the boy's head, compelied him to hold his horse while he assaulted the girls. There is a prospect of his being taken from jail and lynched.

PALMYRA, WIS., December 31.-This is the exteenth day of Thomas Green's fast, because of religious views, during which time he and from food or nonrishment. He insists upo refusing food until he shall have become "sanctified." It also transpires that the Rev. Mr. Pitt, of White Water, who has charge of these meetings, claims to have eaten on two occasions only since Mr. Green began abstaining, and that several other members of the society are also fasting. The fast began at the instigation of the pastor in order that his coworkers might receive more power to convert outsiders to their belief, the meetings having been entirely unsuccessful in that direction. The whole congregation seems to be on the point of starvation, and scarcely able to walk, owing to weakness, and it is feared death or insanity may result. Several members of the society have withdraw from the meetings, thinking the matter is being carried too far. these meetings, claims to have eaten on two Hocal Action.

By Telegraph to the Post-Disparch.

New York, December 31.—The first steps looking towards the introduction in this country of the famous methods of treating hydrophobic patients, discovered by Louis Pasteur, were taken yesterday. Papers necessary for the legal incorporation of the American Institute of Hydrophobia were sent to Albany and no time will be lost in bringing the organization to a condition of practical usefulness. The list of officers, which includes several names of men of recognized worth and talent, is as follows: Presidents, J. B. Messemore, M.D., Louis De Piasse, M.D., and Alex F. Siantard, V. S.; Corresponding Secretary, De Courted of Service Medical Service Medical auspices of the American Alkaloido-Therapic Society. Several dogs showing symptom of the disease have been caught and as soon at the disease has fully developed in one, a portion of the brain will be taken and inoculated in a second dog and after that rabbits will bused, when the hydrophobis hospital will be ready for operation on human patients. The police authorities will be requested to turn over all dogs suspected of rabies to the hospital officials.
